

Information for taxi and rideshare drivers

Physical distance

Wash or sanitise hands often

Stay home if sick and get tested

Clean vehicle regularly

Encourage contactless payment

Provide hand sanitiser to passengers

Passengers going for COVID-19 testing or into quarantine

Passengers may need to take a taxi or rideshare to a COVID-19 testing clinic or quarantine accommodation, if other arrangements cannot be made.

Whenever possible, drivers should:

- Physical distance from passengers.
- Wear a surgical mask for the trip and throw it away afterwards.
- Sanitise hands after helping passengers with their luggage (if required).
- Have good airflow (open windows or set air conditioning to fresh air).
- Clean the vehicle after the trip.

Whenever possible, passengers should:

- Book a large vehicle and sit as far away from the driver as possible.
- Wear a surgical mask.
- Use hand sanitiser before getting into the vehicle.
- Manage their own luggage (so the driver does not need to touch it).

Ask the passenger if they are in quarantine, going for testing, or have any symptoms of COVID-19 before getting into the vehicle so extra precautions can be put in place.